Today I released the second beta of my sebtags custom tag set. The only major remaining work that I should have before the full 1.0 version is cleaning up and adding some default skins.

On Thursday of this week I will be presenting to the ColdFusion Meetup on one piece of the custom tag set: cf_sebForm. I don't have the presentation finished yet, but I am pretty excited about it.

Here is the description I submitted to Charlie:

> The cf_sebForm custom tag simplifies development of simple forms. It separates logic and display, integrates with CFCs, and manages validation. The output is unobtrusive and skinnable.
>
> In this short presentation you will see how to use cf_sebForm to create a simple contact forms, integrate with CFCs, manage validations (both type and business logic), upload files, and reduce spam.

I actually don't think that description does the custom tag justice, but I am still no good at writing those things.

Anyway, come watch me Thursday and you should get a good picture of what this custom tag is all about.
