CF_BlogPicks November 3, 2008

Posted At : November 3, 2008 3:45 PM | Posted By : Steve
Related Categories: CF_BlogPicks, ColdFusion

Peter Bell is back! This is good news overall, but did result in some hard decisions as he posted a large selection of great entries. In addition to a great selection of blog entries (including, painfully, just one by Peter), I also have a bonus section of the OO discussion resulting largely from Ben Nadel's recent trip to take Hal Helms class on OO.

- Handling a slow process in a Model-Glue (or other MVC) application (Raymond Camden, October 27)
- Lean Software Development and Process Improvement (Peter Bell, October 28)
- Top 10 Reserved SQL Keywords (Pete Freitag, October 28)
- Ask Ben: Exporting A Query To CSV Without Using Column Names (Ben Nadel, October 29)
- Interesting Mail Headers (Mark Kruger, October 30)

OO Discussion

- Data Validation vs. Object Validation (Jeff Chastain, October 27)
- Object Oriented Programming And ColdFusion - What's The Point? (Ben Nadel, October 27)
- I Don't Care What An Object Is! (Peter Bell, October 27)