

CF_BlogPicks November 10, 2008

Posted At : November 10, 2008 7:30 AM | Posted By : Steve

Related Categories: CF_BlogPicks, ColdFusion

This was a great week for blog entries. In addition to some great posts on topics like wireframing and form usability, we also saw some debates on OO and ORMs.

- The Importance of Lo-fi Mockups \(and why Balsamiq rocks\) (Peter Bell, November 3)
- CFArgument: Object Oriented Programming (Brian Rinaldi and Peter Bell, November 3)
 - My 2¢ on Programming Pradigms and Maintainability in ColdFusion (Scott Bennett, November)
 - Is this Object Oriented \(Enough\)? (Isaac Dealey, November 3)
- Does ColdFusion have no real ORM frameworks? (Joe Rinehart, November 3)
 - Joe Rinehart Stirs the Object-Relational Mapping \(ORM\) Frameworks Pot (Brian Kotek, November 3)
 - What makes a framework an ORM? (Joe Rinehart, November 3)
 - ColdFusion and Transfer \(And that 3 letter "O" word\) (Raymond Camden, November 3)
 - I Don't Care What An ORM Is! (Bob Silverberg, November 3)
 - Are We Adopting OO For The Right Reasons? \(A More General Take On The ORM Frameworks Discussion\) (Brian Kotek, November 4)
- Click Jacking The new threat on the web? (John Beynon, November 5)
- Good Form - The Art of Collecting Data (Ben Wakeman, November 9)